

Motels in Kingman (Table) are clustered in 4 places. The nicest are on Stockton Hill Road, and the most “economic” are off the Beale Street Exit. The ones to the west off Beale Street are pretty bleak, being very close to a very busy highway and not particularly good, and I do not even list them. To the east from Beale Street, I list a couple because they are within walking distance of Calico’s restaurant, one of the best breakfast joints in town.

Most motels are off the Andy Devine Ave. exit and they are all quite good with decent, reliable breakfast restaurants nearby, JB’s south of the interstate and Dennys to the north. The Railroad, however, with frequent traffic is very close to all of these.

A cluster of older quaint motels and one modern one are at the crest of Andy Devine Ave a couple miles south of the interstate near the intersection with Stockton Hill Road. The railroad is close. Rutherford’s is a good breakfast place in this area and the famous DamBar Steakhouse is nearby. A roadcut at the crest of Andy Devine nicely exposes a couple of faults and a depositional contact of the Peach Spring Tuff overlying a cinder cone are within easy walking distance of these motels.
